

ABOUT NGN

Next Generation Nepal, a nonprofit founded in 2006 by Conor Grennan, is dedicated to reconnecting trafficked children with their families.

Rescue

NGN works with the Gov't of Nepal to rescue and care for exploited children, providing them with a caring home, education, medical care and counseling until we can find their families.

Reconnection

NGN rebuilds family ties by facilitating frequent visits and phone calls as we assess the family situation to determine if full reunification is possible. When they are ready, we bring the children home for good. To date, NGN has reconnected over 500 children and fully reunified nearly 200 children with their families.

Education

All the children who are in our care at the NGN transit home while our teams are searching for their families are provided with regular schooling, books, supplies and tutors.

Help Me Bring Home the Lost Children of Nepal.

Over 16,000 children are believed to be living in abusive children's homes or orphanages in Nepal. Over two-thirds of these children have at least one living parent and are not orphans at all.

Throughout Nepal, children are trafficked under the promises of an escape from poverty and the prospect of a good education in the capital. Traffickers portray themselves as boarding school representatives who make promises to parents about wealthy sponsors who want to provide children a “golden opportunity” of education and care at a boarding school in Kathmandu.

However, instead of being taken to education institutions, these children are taken to children's homes where they are kept in horrific conditions and most often never see their families again.

NGN exists to help trafficked children find their families.

Please join me in helping to put an end to child exploitation in Nepal!

Date:

Time:

Location:

Coordinator:

Contact:

To learn about the story of Next Generation Nepal read ‘Little Princes: One Man’s Promise to Bring Home the Lost Children of Nepal’ by Conor Grennan.

